This is the thirty-first of a series of new-style county histories which will include all of the 102 counties of Illinois, and, ultimately, all of the 3,103 counties of the United States. The project, specializing in low-altitude aerial photographs of cities, towns, villages and farmsteads and with brief historical narratives added, is known as The American Aerial County History Series. For a list of already-published volumes in the Illinois group, see back of title page of this book. Each of the volumes is being written by John Drury, author of Old Illinois Houses, Historic Midwest Houses, Midwest Heritage, etc., and member of the American Association for State and Local History and the Illinois State Historical Society.

In the preparation of this work on McLean County, Illinois, the writer and publisher hereby acknowledge their gratitude, for advice and assistance generously given them, to Mr. Joseph C. Wolf and Mrs. Ellen Chase of the Newberry Library, Chicago; to Mr. Herbert H. Hewitt, Mrs. Roberta Sutton and Miss Winifred Baum, all of the Chicago Public Library, Chicago; and to various librarians, public officials, business executives and private citizens of the city of Bloomington, the town of Normal and the county of McLean, Illinois. The author also wishes to express special acknowledgments to his wife, Marion Neville Drury, for research, editorial and proof-reading assistance.

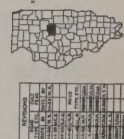

Grateful appreciation is also shown here to officials of the Bureau of Public Roads of the United States Department of Commerce and to officials of the Department of Public Roads & Planning of the State of Illinois (in particular to those in charge of that department's Bureau of Research and Planning in the Highway Department), for permission to use the McLean County maps included in this book.

STORY OF McLEAN COUNTY

STORY OF McLEAN COUNTY, ILLINOIS

Largest of Illinois counties in point of land area, McLean County, located in almost the center of the state, is equally of note as a leading agricultural, manufacturing and educational locality and as the "home grounds" of an unusually large number of prominent Americans of both the past and present. Situated midway between Chicago and St. Louis and traversed by US 66, main highway of the state, McLean County contains two of the Prairie State's most renowned institutions of higher learning, Illinois State Normal University and Illinois Wesleyan University.

One of the most distinguished Americans of today was reared and educated in the county's principal city and seat of justice, Bloomington. He is Adlai E. Stevenson. A former governor of Illinois, Stevenson, as all the world knows, was the Democratic candidate for President of the United States in 1952. Not so well known, however, is the fact that his grandfather, Adlai E. Stevenson I, was not only a pioneer Bloomington lawyer but an Illinois congressman, an Assistant Postmaster General and Vice-President of the United States during the second administration of President Cleveland.

Another kinsman of the 1952 presidential candidate, his father, Lewis Green Stevenson, was also an important public figure, having served as Secretary of State for Illinois during World War I. Still another kinsman, his maternal great-grandfather, Jesse W. Fell, is outstanding in history as a founder of numerous central Illinois towns (including Normal), as Bloomington's first lawyer and first newspaper publisher and as one of the three McLean County men who had most to do with bringing about the nomination of Abraham Lincoln as a presidential candidate in 1860.

The other two men of this historic triumvirate were David Davis and Leonard Swett, both pioneer Bloomington lawyers. Davis subsequently became judge of the famous Eighth Judicial Circuit in Illinois—a circuit in which Abraham Lincoln, Stephen A. Douglas, Leonard Swett and other celebrated lawyers of the day traveled. And it was the "three musketeers," as Davis, Fell and Swett were often called, who frequently brought Lincoln to Bloomington, the most memorable visit of which was the day in 1856 when he delivered his famous "Lost Speech" in Major's Hall. In this hall, on that day, the Republican party was first organized in Illinois.

In the years since then, Bloomington produced numerous other political figures of note besides members of the Stevenson family. Among the most famous of these was Joseph W. Fifer, elected Governor of Illinois in 1889 and who, during the gubernatorial nominating campaign, became known throughout the nation as "Private Joe" Fifer (most of his opponents were Civil War generals). Another was John M. Hamilton, who also was a Governor of Illinois, having been elected to that office in 1883.

But McLean County has produced, and continues to produce, many other celebrated Americans besides political leaders. In this county, for example, were born and reared Elbert Hubbard, famous author, editor, philosopher and master craftsman; Melville E. Stone, one of the founders of the Chicago Daily News and "father" of the Associated Press; Richard Hovey, popular poet of an earlier day; and Margaret Illington, an actress of international renown. Today, McLean County is the home of three distinguished educators with national reputations, one of them being President Raymond Fairchild of Illinois State Normal University. The other two are Chris A. De Young and Robert H. Moore, also of the Illinois State Normal University.

Not least interesting about McLean County, too, is that its principal city has long been the locale of the American Passion Play, staged each year in the Scottish Rite Temple. Also of interest is the fact that Bloomington had an almost nationwide reputation in the late 1880's, due to the extensive circulation of Wakefield's Almanac, a publication issued by a local patent medicine manufacturer. More recently, Bloomington became the winter quarters of some of the most famous circus trapeze artists in America. Among these were the Flying La Vans and the Flying Concellos.

INDIAN OCCUPATION

When the first permanent settlers came to the region of present-day McLean County in the spring of 1822, they found it occupied by a few scattered bands of the Kickapoo and Pottawatomie tribes of Indians. Although at first the local chief of these tribes, Ma-Shee-Na, objected to the coming of the white men, he finally relented and both he and his tribesmen became friendly with the new palefaces in their midst. One of the principal Indian villages then was at Old Town Timber, in present-day Old Town Township; another was at Pleasant Hill, in present Lexington Township.

During the summer months, however, the Indians of these villages liked to foregather among the trees of what was later called Blooming Grove—a wooded rise of ground in the center of today's McLean County. This gentle hill is now the site of Bloomington city. As a matter of fact, Blooming Grove, in earliest times, was the focal point of a number of Indian trails; a kind of resting-place on the route between the Wabash River and the Illinois River.

KEG GROVE

If Blooming Grove was an attractive name for the wooded rise of ground in the center of the region, it was not so known when the first permanent settlers arrived hereabouts. They learned that, among the early trappers and traders who occasionally passed through the area, it was known as Keg Hill. It derived this name from the legend of a party of trappers who one day cached a keg of liquor at the site—a buried treasure that was afterwards found by some Kickapoos, who immediately staged a celebration. Thus the tract came to be known as Keg Grove, a name that remained until Mrs. William Orendorff, wife of an early settler, suggested it be changed to Blooming Grove because of the profusion of flowers on the site.

FIRST SETTLERS

Accepted as the first permanent settlers of present-day McLean County are John Hendrix and John W. Dawson, both of who came with their families in the spring of 1822 and staked out claims near the east end of what later came to be known as Blooming Grove. Some local historians, however, claim that John Hendrix should have the title of first settler exclusively for himself, stating that he arrived a few weeks earlier than John W. Dawson. Both the Hendrix and Dawson families came from Sangamon County.

At that time, of course, there was no McLean County; most of its present area was in Fayette County, which then was much larger than it is today. We are told that the first white female child born in the region that now is McLean County was Elizabeth Ann Hendrix, whose birth occurred in the Hendrix log cabin on May 3, 1823. The first school was taught in the Dawson cabin in that same year, the teacher having been Miss Delila Mullen.

EARLY ARRIVALS

One year after Hendrix and Dawson arrived, they were joined at Blooming Grove by William and Thomas Orendorff, brothers, both of whom later played important parts in the early history of McLean County. A little later in 1823 there came to the same place John Benson and his two sons, James and William—a family that afterwards moved to White Oak Township.

In 1823, furthermore, came Gardner Randolph, said to have been a second cousin of John Randolph of Roanoke. Instead of building a cabin at Blooming Grove, however, Randolph settled at a grove just to the southward, and this became known as Randolph's Grove (it was in the vicinity of the present hamlet of Randolph). With Gardner Randolph when he first came here was his brother-in-law, Alfred M. Stringfield. A year later two others arrived at Randolph's Grove—James Burleson and Thomas O. Rutledge.

In 1824 a new settlement was started, Funk's Grove. It was founded by Isaac Funk, afterwards to become a prominent state senator. With Isaac Funk when he arrived was his brother, Absalom; his brother-in-law, Robert Stubblefield; and his close friend, William Brock. Still in existence today is the hamlet of Funk's Grove, with a present population of twenty-five.

In 1824, too, several newcomers arrived near the Hendrix and Dawson cabins at Blooming Grove—now Bloomington city. The best-known of these was the Reverend Ebenezer Rhodes, first minister on the site of Bloomington. He had earlier been ordained into the Separate Baptists. With him were his two sons, John and Jeremiah. Others who came to Blooming Grove that same year were William Walker, William R. Goodheart and William H. Hodge.

PART OF FAYETTE COUNTY

As we have seen, when the first permanent settlers came to the region of present McLean County in 1822, there was no such county and the area they occupied was part of Fayette County. We have noted, also, that they first took root at a wooded tract called Keg Grove, a name which the settlers disliked and which they soon afterwards changed to the more appealing Blooming Grove (now Bloomington). In regard to this change of name, a Bloomington citizen many years later voiced due approval by saying: "Suppose Keg Grove had become transformed into Keg Town. How do you suppose Joe Fifer could have ever been elected governor of this State? Or how could Adlai Stevenson, of Keg Town, have been chosen Vice-President of the United States?"

In Professor Merriman's historical narrative of the county, we find these words: "During the period that elapsed between 1822 to 1827, Fayette County had jurisdiction over all the territory now within the present limits of McLean County, and on as far north as the Illinois River. Vandalia, the county seat, was over one hundred miles distant. Blooming Grove could exert but little influence in so large a district, and its inhabitants urged the formation of a new county. For many years, the only official in all this region was Mr. William Orendorff, who was commissioned in 1825, by Gov. Coles, as a Justice of the Peace of Fayette County. His jurisdiction extended almost indefinitely toward Wisconsin."

It is to be remembered, of course, that at this time there were very few settlers in central and northern Illinois, and counties of the period were vast in extent and mostly prairie or wilderness areas. When the McLean countryside was part of Fayette County, that county's seat, Vandalia, located 125 miles south of Blooming Grove, was also the capital of Illinois, a position it held until Springfield became the capital in 1837.

As more and more settlers came to Blooming Grove in the middle 1820's, there soon were enough to form it, and the country roundabout, into an election precinct. This was ordered by the Fayette County commissioners in 1826 and the new voting area was called the "Orendorff Precinct." It was ordered further that the polling place was to be at the home of William Orendorff. In addition to Orendorff, the other two judges of election named for the new precinct were James Latta and John Benson—all three of whom were among the earliest settlers of future McLean County. Two other early settlers, William H. Hodge and William See, were named clerks of election.

In the meantime, one of the Fayette County commissioners, James Allin, was observing with more than usual interest the steady growth of population in and about Blooming Grove. As it afterwards developed, James Allin became the founder of Bloomington, a town he laid out just north of Blooming Grove.

PART OF TAZEWELL COUNTY

When Tazewell County was organized in 1827, it acquired a large portion of the upper part of Fayette County—a portion out of which was later carved McLean County. Thus it happened that some of the earliest settlers of McLean County were elected to public office in newly-formed Tazewell County. As a matter of fact, the first meeting of the Tazewell County commissioners was held in the log cabin home of William Orendorff at Blooming Grove.

One of the three Tazewell County commissioners then was James Latta, who later helped to organize McLean County. Other Blooming Grove settlers who were elected to Tazewell County public offices were Thomas Orendorff, coroner; John Benson, treasurer; and William H. Hodge, sheriff. The second meeting of the Tazewell County commissioners was held at the home of Ephraim Stout, at Stout's Grove, which now is in McLean County.

FOUNDING OF McLEAN COUNTY

By the year 1830 there were enough settlers at Blooming Grove, Funk's Grove, Randolph's Grove and other early communities of the area to justify the formation of a new county. A movement was soon started with that object in view, meetings were held, petitions were circulated, and in time James Latta and Thomas Orendorff were on their way to the Illinois state legislature at Vandalia. In their saddlebags were the petitions of their neighbors asking for the formation of a new county.

It seems the state legislature was quick to grant the "prayer" of the petitioners. A bill authorizing the new county was passed by the lower house of the legislature in the morning, and by the upper house in the afternoon of the same day. When this bill was signed by Governor John Reynolds, there was born McLean County. By an interesting coincidence, the natal day of the county is the same as the traditional natal day of Jesus Christ—December 25th. The law creating McLean County was signed by Governor Reynolds on December 25, 1830.

Among other early settlers who were active in helping to organize the new county were Thomas Orendorff's older brother, William; John Benson, who had earlier been treasurer of Tazewell County; and William H. Hodge, subsequently to become the first teacher in the new town of Bloomington. Perhaps more active than any of these, however, was James Allin, the former Fayette County commissioner. Seeing the future possibilities of the Blooming Grove neighborhood, he had moved northward to it in 1829 and opened a general store.

Professor Merriman, in his historical narrative, has this to say regarding

James Allin: "During the following session of the Legislature, Mr. Thomas Orendorff and Rev. James Latta went to Vandalia with a petition for a new county. Before they started, Mr. Allin rendered them valuable assistance by suggestions as to how they should operate for the passage of the bill for the new county. He had lived several years at the capital, and understood how these matters were managed in legislative halls. When the act passed, it named three men to locate the county seat, who were the parties Mr. Allin desired; and when they met here they approved of the site, and reported in favor of locating the county seat 'at the north side of the Blooming Grove.'"

JOHN McLEAN

When McLean County was given a name, it honored the memory of John McLean, a prominent personage of early Illinois history. In the beginning a pioneer Illinois lawyer, John McLean later became a judge during territorial days. When Illinois was admitted to statehood in 1818, he was elected the new state's first representative to Congress. Then, in 1824, he was elected to the United States Senate from Illinois. Senator John McLean died in 1830—the same year in which McLean County was organized.

BLOOMINGTON IS BORN

In another part of his historical account, Professor Merriman states: "Mr. James Allin had opened his store at his new location in 1829, and made a purchase of land where the city of Bloomington now stands. Before the law organizing McLean County was passed, Mr. Allin formed his plans to secure the county seat, though we cannot say just how much mention he made of his designs."

In any case, James Allin was in possession of 160 acres of land "at the north side of the Blooming Grove" when the county was organized on December 25, 1830. After the three legislative site commissioners selected the Allin tract as the location for the new county's seat of justice, James Allin immediately proceeded to lay out a town, lots were sold on July 4, 1831, and thus was born the present city of Bloomington.

Again referring to the Merriman county history, we find these words: "Mr. James Allin donated twenty-two and one-half acres of land, to be divided into lots and sold for the benefit of McLean County. Of course he owned land adjoining that would be advanced in value, and he also intended to go on with his store and general business. In advancing his own interests he also benefited the public, and he has always justly taken rank as a benefactor of the community, having been very popular to the day of his death."

The Merriman account continues: "Mr. Allin was a far-seeing, shrewd business man, and was, in fact, a model speculator. He selected the prettiest location for a town that could possibly be found in the county. Blooming Grove and the prairie were adjoining each other; his donated land, or the 'original town,' was just on the northern edge of the grove, bounded by North, East and West streets, with Front Street on its southern border."

FIRST COUNTY OFFICERS

After the ballots were counted at McLean County's first election in March, 1831, it was found that the following had been elected the county's first commissioners: Jonathan Cheney (of Cheney's Grove), Timothy B. Hoblitt (of Big Grove), and Jesse Havens (of Haven's Grove). Elected to the office of county treasurer was Thomas Orendorff. It was not until a year later that Thomas Cheney was elected the county's first sheriff and collector.

At its first official meeting, held in the home of James Allin at the new town of Bloomington, the Board of County Commissioners appointed James Latta as commissioner of school lands, Dr. Isaac Baker as county surveyor, and Samuel Durley as assessor and recorder. It was not until 1836 that Elijah Rockhold was elected the county's first coroner.

BLACK HAWK WAR

The new county of McLean had no sooner settled down to business when the Black Hawk War opened in 1832 and caused great alarm among the early settlers of the county. A militia company of mounted volunteers was immediately formed in McLean County with Meritt L. Covell as captain, Asahel Gridley as first lieutenant, and Moses Baldwin as second lieutenant. This company soon afterwards took part in the Battle of Stillman's Run, near Dixon, Illinois.

Writing of the battle afterwards, Asahel Gridley (later a prominent Bloomington banker) said: "The men were very anxious to go and clean out the Indians, and not wait for the regulars. So we went on and came up with the Indians, six or seven hundred strong, a little way on the other side of what is now called Stillman's Run. I cannot say much about the fight but this—that we got most beautifully whipped by the Indians. However, we only lost one man from this county and his name was Joseph Draper . . . Soon after the battle, we were sent back to this county and mustered out of service."

JESSE FELL ARRIVES

Just after the close of the Black Hawk War of 1832 there came to the new county seat town of Bloomington a young lawyer who was destined to play an important role in the later history of McLean County. This young man was Jesse W. Fell, who not only became Bloomington's first professional lawyer, first newspaper publisher and founder of the town of Normal, but who also became the maternal great-grandfather of Adlai E. Stevenson II, candidate for President of the United States in 1952. Not least interesting about Jesse Fell, also, is that he and two other Bloomington lawyers, David Davis and Leonard Swett, had most to do with bringing about the nomination of Abraham Lincoln as a presidential candidate in 1860.

FIRST COURTHOUSE

It was just after the Black Hawk War, also, that McLean County built its first courthouse in Bloomington. It was completed in December, 1832, the contract for building it having been let to Asahel Gridley, later to become a leading Bloomington banker. The cost of the structure was $339.75. It was described as being one story high, eighteen by thirty feet in size, and "finished off in the then prevailing style." About the same time, William Dimmitt built a jail for the county at a cost of $321.

The county's first courthouse, however, was only used until 1836 when it was replaced by a two-story brick edifice which cost about $6,000 to build. This second courthouse remained standing until 1868 at which time a third courthouse was erected—a much larger, and more ornate, edifice than the previous one and costing about $400,000 to build. It served the county until the great Bloomington fire of 1900 when it and many other downtown buildings were destroyed. Soon thereafter, the county's fourth, and present, courthouse was completed.

BLOOMINGTON PANTAGRAPH

One of the oldest, and one of the most richly historical, newspapers in Illinois today is the Bloomington Pantagraph. Although on record as having been founded in 1846, the Bloomington Pantagraph (meaning "Write everything") is actually an outgrowth of The Bloomington Observer and McLean County Advocate, first newspaper in the county. The Observer was established in 1837 by Jesse Fell, who had as his associates James Allin and Asahel Gridley.

In the early 1850's Jesse Fell sold his newspaper to Charles P. Merriman, who changed its name to the Bloomington Pantagraph (Merriman afterwards wrote the best and most comprehensive history of McLean County). A supporter of Abraham Lincoln from almost the beginning of his public career, the Pantagraph was the first newspaper in America to offer his name as a presidential possibility.

After the Civil War, the Pantagraph was acquired by William O. Davis, son-in-law of Jesse Fell. One of the Davis daughters, Helen, later married Lewis Green Stevenson, son of Adlai E. Stevenson I. And thus it was that Adlai E. Stevenson II, candidate for President in 1952, became a part owner, by inheritance, of the Bloomington Pantagraph. In his younger years, the presidential candidate served as assistant managing editor of the Pantagraph. Today, the Pantagraph has a daily circulation of nearly 38,000 and is published by Loring C. Merwin, cousin of Adlai Stevenson II.

MEXICAN WAR

At the outbreak of the Mexican War in 1846, a company of volunteers was organized in McLean County and this became Company B of the 4th Regiment of Illinois Volunteers. The regiment was commanded by Colonel Edward D. Baker, of Springfield, who afterwards became a celebrated orator and United States senator and who was killed in the Civil War. Serving under Baker in the Mexican campaign was Lieutenant Colonel John Moore, of McLean County, who also achieved later fame, both as state treasurer of Illinois and lieutenant governor of the state.

In direct command of the McLean County volunteers were Dr. J. Elkin, captain; James Withers, first lieutenant; and William Duncan, second lieutenant. The McLean company took part in the battles at Vera Cruz and Cerro Gordo. Only two deaths, however, occurred in the company—Andrew Hodge and John Misner. After the two battles mentioned, the McLean volunteers returned to Illinois and were mustered out of service.

ILLINOIS WESLEYAN UNIVERSITY

It was in 1853 that Illinois Wesleyan University, located in Bloomington and now a leading Illinois institution of higher learning, received its charter from the state legislature. Although supported by the Illinois Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, the university is non-denominational and has a present enrollment of some 800 students. In 1930 this institution absorbed Hedding College, which had been conducted for many years at Abingdon, Illinois. Among early trustees of the university were Judge David Davis, of Bloomington, and the Reverend Peter Cartwright, most famous of pioneer circuit-riding preachers in Illinois.

FIRST RAILROAD

It was in 1853, also, that the citizens of McLean County saw their first railroad—a form of transportation that was of the greatest importance in the economic development of the county. This first "steam road" was the Illinois Central, which ran its first train from La Salle to Bloomington on May 23, 1853. The county's second railroad, now part of the Chicago & Alton system, was completed from Springfield to Bloomington on October 16, 1853. The Alton road later built its shops in Bloomington.

LINCOLN'S "LOST SPEECH"

One of the most significant events in the life of Abraham Lincoln took place in Bloomington on May 29, 1856. This was the day on which he delivered his famous "Lost Speech" at a meeting of Republicans in Major's Hall—the first state convention of Republicans to be held in Illinois. Although no record was made of Lincoln's speech here, it was remembered as a challenging rebuke to the pro-slavery element of the nation and as a precursor of the Civil War. The speech made Lincoln a national figure, starting him on the road towards the White House.

Two years after this speech, Lincoln again visited Bloomington, this time as a candidate against Stephen A. Douglas for the office of United States senator. It was during this campaign of 1858 that the famous Lincoln-Douglas debates were staged, but Bloomington was not included among the seven Illinois towns where the debates were held. On September 4, 1858, however, Lincoln delivered a campaign speech in Bloomington before some 6,000 persons in Courthouse Square. On that day he was the house guest of his intimate friend, Judge David Davis.

ILLINOIS STATE NORMAL UNIVERSITY

Oldest teachers' college in Illinois, and the tenth oldest in the United States, is Illinois State Normal University in the town of Normal, adjacent to Bloomington city. With a present enrollment of 2,250 students, the university occupies a 68-acre landscaped campus on which stand 25 major buildings. In addition, the university operates University Farm, comprising 192 acres on which stand 12 buildings. Total value of the university's physical plant—land, buildings, equipment—is $10,000,000.

This first teachers' college in Illinois was established in North Bloomington—as Normal was then called—in 1857, largely through the efforts of Jesse W. Fell, Judge David Davis and other leading citizens of Bloomington. These citizens offered a bid of $100,000 for the location of the university here, and $70,000 of this bid was underwritten by a guarantee drafted by Abraham Lincoln and signed by eighty-five Bloomington residents.

One year after the university was chartered, Jesse Fell laid out the town of Normal and planted the trees which are now such an outstanding sight of the town. The first head of the university was Charles E. Hovey, father of the famous American poet, Richard Hovey. A one-time student at Normal High School, which then was a "practice school" for the teachers of the university, was Adlai E. Stevenson II, great-grandson of Jesse W. Fell and Democratic candidate for President in 1952.

At the main entrance to the campus of Illinois State Normal University there stands today an attractive memorial gate bearing the inscription: "To the founder of Normal, Jesse W. Fell, friend of education, lover and planter of trees and philanthropist of mighty vision, this gate is dedicated by The Women's Improvement League and his many friends."

DAVIS, FELL AND SWETT

As we have already noted, it was three Bloomington lawyers, David Davis, Jesse Fell and Leonard Swett, who had most to do with bringing about the nomination of Abraham Lincoln as a candidate for President of the United States in 1860. They accomplished this great and historic task both before and during the momentous Republican convention at the Wigwam, in Chicago, which opened on May 16, 1860.

Practically all Lincoln biographies give detailed accounts of the manner in which these three Bloomington men achieved their goal of elevating Lincoln to the Presidency. Before the campaign, Davis had long been judge of the celebrated Eighth Judicial Circuit in Illinois; the circuit traveled by Lincoln, Stephen A. Douglas and other famous lawyers of the day. After the Civil War, Davis served as an associate justice of the United States Supreme Court and as a United States senator from Illinois. He died at Bloomington in 1886.

A year later, Jesse Fell came to the end of his days at the age of seventy-nine. One of his most prized possessions was a three-page autobiography of Lincoln—the only autobiography Lincoln ever wrote. It was penned in Lincoln's own hand at the suggestion of Jesse Fell (the document is now in the Library of Congress).

The third member of the "Lincoln nominators," Leonard Swett, became a resident of Chicago after the Republican convention of 1860 and there, during the post-Civil War years, attained national renown as a civil and criminal lawyer. He died in Chicago in 1889.

THE CIVIL WAR

When President Lincoln urgently called for 75,000 volunteers at the outbreak of the Civil War in 1861, McLean County quickly responded with more than its quotas of men and money for the Union cause. It has been estimated that the county, during the full course of the conflict, furnished more than 4,000 men to the Union armies—practically one-half of its able-bodied male population. Among the county's most outstanding officers in the Civil War were Generals William W. Orme, Asahel Gridley, and Giles A. Smith and Colonels John McNulta, Harvey Hogg, William McCullough and Charles E. Hovey. Several years after the close of the war McLean County honored the memory of its fallen soldiers by erecting an impressive Soldiers' Monument in Franklin Park.

SOLDIERS' AND SAILORS' CHILDREN'S HOME

Another noted institution of McLean County is the Soldiers' and Sailors' Children's Home in the university town of Normal. It was established here in 1867 on land donated by many leading citizens of Normal and Bloomington, among them Jesse Fell and Judge David Davis. The home was built at an initial cost of $125,000. Today, it occupies 160 acres of landscaped grounds on which stand more than 30 buildings. The institution provides a home and education for an average of 600 children.

WAKEFIELD'S ALMANAC

During the late 1880's one of the best-known products of Bloomington was Wakefield's Almanac. It was circulated annually in all parts of the United States by a local medicine company founded by Dr. C. Wakefield, pioneer physician of Bloomington. We are told that Wakefield's Almanac, besides an English version, was printed in three other languages, Swedish, German and Norwegian.

"PRIVATE JOE" FIFER

When Joseph W. Fifer, a prominent Bloomington lawyer, was a contestant in the Republican primaries for Governor of Illinois in 1888, he became widely known as "Private Joe" Fifer—a name that remained with him even after he was elected chief executive of the state. It arose from the fact that all of his opponents in the nominating contest that year were generals and other high officers of the Civil War. "Private Joe" Fifer died in Bloomington in 1938 at an advanced age.

In addition to Fifer and Adlai E. Stevenson II, another prominent resident of Bloomington who became Governor was John M. Hamilton. He was elected the state's chief executive in 1883. He first came to Bloomington in 1869 as a young lawyer. In the beginning, however, Hamilton served as a tutor in Illinois Wesleyan University. After taking up the practice of law, he was early elected to the Illinois state senate.

GREAT FIRE OF 1900

About midnight on June 18, 1900, a fire broke out in the Model Laundry in Bloomington's central business district. It spread quickly to other business buildings, and, eight hours later, most of the city's downtown district was a mass of smoking ruins. It was the most disastrous fire in the history of McLean County. The conflagration destroyed many commercial buildings as well as the ornate McLean County Courthouse. Damage was estimated at more than $2,000,000. The business district was re-built soon afterwards, and, in the years following, there appeared here such outstanding structures as the State Farm Insurance building, the McBarnes building and the Scottish Rite Temple.

A POPULAR POET

When Richard Hovey died in 1900, the nation lost one of its most popular poets. He was best known for his Songs From Vagabondia, which he wrote in collaboration with Bliss Carmen. His father was Charles E. Hovey, first president of Illinois State Normal University. The future poet was born in the Hovey home at 202 West Mulberry Avenue, in Normal, on May 4, 1864. A few years after the Civil War, the Hoveys moved to Washington, D.C., and it was there young Richard was educated.

"SAGE OF EAST AURORA"

Another noted literary figure who was born and early reared in McLean County was Elbert Hubbard, writer, editor, master craftsman, philosopher and famous at the turn of the century as the "Sage of East Aurora." It was at East Aurora, New York, that his craftsmen turned out furniture and other household articles. He died on the Lusitania when it was sunk during World War I.

TRAPEZE TERRACE

For some strange reason, Bloomington has nurtured almost as many famous trapeze artists as it has noted lawyers, political leaders, educators, journalists and literary figures. As a result, there appeared in the city a place called Trapeze Terrace, a kind of winter training ground for many of the aerial artists of the country. Among famous circus performers who practiced here in the past were the Flying La Vans and the Flying Concellos.

MELVILLE E. STONE

One of America's great editors, Melville E. Stone, was born and early reared in the small village of Hudson, just north of Bloomington. His birth occurred here on August 22, 1848. In his mature years, Melville E. Stone became co-founder, with Victor Lawson, of the Chicago Daily News. Later, he became the "father" of the Associated Press, now the largest news-gathering agency in the world. Stone died in 1929. The Hudson house in which he was born afterwards became the home of Thomas W. Stevenson, granduncle of the present Adlai E. Stevenson of Chicago.

LAKE BLOOMINGTON

Near the village of Hudson, in the northern part of the county, lies Lake Bloomington, a 500-acre body of water created by damming up Money Creek. It is not only the source of Bloomington's water supply but is a recreational area of great popularity in this part of the state. The lake is surrounded by a wooded tract totalling nearly 1,500 acres and containing many summer cottages and permanent homes. Swimming, fishing and boating are afforded by the lake.

At the northern end of the lake stands the Pumping Station, designed in the Italian Renaissance style of architecture. A stone gateway near the station has imbedded in it a plaque in memory of Dr. Silas Hubbard, beloved pioneer physician of the area and father of the famous author and master craftsman, Elbert Hubbard. The latter, together with Melville E. Stone, noted editor, are honored in the Stone-Hubbard Memorial, a granite bench which overlooks Lake Bloomington.

GOVERNOR ADLAI E. STEVENSON

When Adlai E. Stevenson, who then was Governor of Illinois, was chosen by the Democratic party to oppose General Dwight D. Eisenhower in the presidential race of 1952, national attention was almost immediately centered on Governor Stevenson's family seat—McLean County, Illinois. Although he was born in Los Angeles, California (on February 5, 1900), where his parents happened to be living at the time, Stevenson, while still an infant, was brought back to Bloomington and there he was reared, educated and started out on the career that led him to the presidential contest of 1952 and to world renown.

If many details of pioneer Bloomington days, of pioneer Bloomington characters, appear in most biographies of that earlier presidential personage, Abraham Lincoln, so also appear many details of the city's later period and later personalities in the several biographies of Adlai Stevenson that have been published in recent years. One of the best of these works is Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois, written by Noel F. Busch and published in 1952.

In this volume we are given the full story of Stevenson's forbears in McLean County, starting with Jesse W. Fell, who first arrived in 1832. We are told further of Stevenson's grandfather, Adlai E. Stevenson I, a pioneer Bloomington lawyer who became Vice-President of the United States. And we are given details, too, of the former Illinois governor's father, Lewis Green Stevenson, a Bloomington farm manager who in 1914 was elected Secretary of State for Illinois.

Although the 1952 presidential candidate now lives on a farm at Libertyville, Illinois, just outside Chicago, he still retains the deepest attachment, we are told, for his ancestral county, McLean, in the center of Illinois, in the heartland of America. And this devotion, say his biographers, is entirely aside from any material connections he still has with Bloomington, such as his one-fourth ownership of the Bloomington Pantagraph, his interest in the old Stevenson home on Washington Street (which his sister, Mrs. Ernest L. Ives, and her husband often visit), and his possession of several farms in McLean and adjoining counties.

"WHO'S WHO" IN McLEAN COUNTY

In the latest (1955) edition of that standard reference work, Who's Who in America, we find biographies-in-brief of three McLean County men. All are educators with national reputations and all are connected with Illinois State Normal University.

One of them is President Raymond Wilber Fairchild of the university. After serving as administrative head of various high schools and colleges in other parts of Illinois and in Wisconsin, Dr. Fairchild became a professor in the School of Education at Northwestern University, Evanston, Illinois, in 1930. Three years later he was named president of Illinois State Normal University.

Now serving as director of integration for that university is Dr. Chris Anthony De Young. Before coming to Normal in 1934, Dr. De Young had served as a private and governmental educator in various parts of India, and, after World War II, as a United States government educator in Germany. He has written numerous books and magazine articles in the field of education.

Another authority in education, as well as in semantics, is Professor Robert Herman Moore, also of Illinois State Normal University. He first came to Bloomington in 1944 when he was appointed assistant professor of education at Illinois Wesleyan University. In 1952 he was appointed associate professor of education at Illinois State Normal. His book, General Semantics, is regarded as an authoritative work in the field of word meanings.

McLEAN COUNTY TODAY

On the basis of the latest published census returns, a statistical profile may be drawn of McLean County as it was in 1950, or in mid-twentieth century. These returns show that the county then had a total population of 76,577—an increase of 3.6 per cent over its 1940 population. Thus, the county stood 325th in population rank among the 3,103 counties of the United States. A little over 1 per cent of its population was classified as non-white.

As we have already noted, McLean is the largest of Illinois counties in point of land area, occupying a locality of 1,173 square miles. Its density of population was given as 65 inhabitants per square mile.

Whereas 43,935 of its inhabitants were classified as urban dwellers, 15,325 were classified as rural farm dwellers. Between these two groups were 17,317 classified as rural non-farm residents. In 1950 the county had 7,487 infants under five years of age, 8,260 persons sixty-five years old and over, and the median age was given as 31.4 years. At that time there were 4,140 residents living in another county of the United States, or abroad. The county then had a total of 50,118 potential voters.

Under the heading of vital statistics, McLean County in 1950 had 1,656 live births, 865 deaths (including 54 infant deaths), and 814 marriages.

At that time, also, the county had 19,570 families (two or more persons related by marriage or blood). The median income of all of these families was given as $3,198. More than 23 per cent had incomes of less than $2,000, while 21.7 per cent had incomes of $5,000 or more.

In the field of education, the county then had a total of 12,345 young persons between the ages of seven and seventeen years (school age). Of this total, 7,795 were between the ages of seven and thirteen years (primary school age), and 94.3 per cent of these were enrolled in primary schools. There were 3,520 between the ages of fourteen and seventeen years (high school age), and 86.4 per cent of these were enrolled in high schools. Of all persons in the county twenty-five years old and over, it was found that the median number of school years they completed was 10. A little more than 4 per cent completed less than 5 grades, while 40 per cent completed high school or more.

With reference to labor, the county in 1950 had a potential labor force (persons fourteen years old and over) of 58,631. Actually employed, however, were 30,526, of which 77.9 per cent were males and 28.7 per cent females. There were 6,271 employed in retail and wholesale trade, 5,631 in agriculture, 3,920 in manufacturing, 3,341 in professional and related services, 2,451 in transportation, communication and other public utilities, 2,163 in finance, insurance and real estate, 1,744 in business and personal services, 1,660 in construction, and 26 in mining. The labor figures were summed up by showing that 18.9 per cent of the county's total employed were engaged in agriculture, while 13.2 per cent were engaged in manufacturing.

As for housing, the county in 1950 had a total of 23,668 housing units—in 1940 it had 21,564. The median number of rooms per unit was given as 5. More than 76 per cent were one-dwelling unit detached structures (including occupied trailers), 7.9 per cent were built in 1940 or later, and 60.4 per cent had hot running water with private toilet and bath. Furthermore, 56.5 per cent were owner-occupied, 1 per cent were occupied by non-white households, 67.5 per cent had central heating, 88.5 per cent had mechanical refrigerators, and 98.3 per cent had radios. There were 19,250 houses classified as non-farm dwelling units, and the median value of these was given as $7,059. The median gross monthly rental of renter-occupied houses was given as $47.31.

In 1948, when the last business census was taken, McLean County had a total of 932 retail stores which employed 4,346 persons and which grossed $78,937,000 in sales. The largest number of these were food stores, which totaled 205 and which grossed $16,206,000 in sales. The next largest were eating and drinking places, which totaled 189 and which grossed $5,864,000 in sales. In that same year, there were 173 wholesale establishments which employed 895 persons and which grossed $64,526,000 in sales.

In the field of manufacturing, the county in 1947 had 76 manufacturing plants which employed 4,520 persons and which produced goods, articles, merchandise, etc., in the amount of $26,335,000.

It is in the field of agriculture, however, that the county derives its greatest wealth. In 1950 it had a total of 3,773 farms, of which 3,472 were classified as commercial farms. More than 53 per cent of all its farms were operated by tenants. The average value of land and buildings per farm for all farms was given as $54,210. In 1949, when such totals were last obtained, the value of all farm products sold—crops, livestock, poultry, dairy products—was placed at $40,317,000. In that same year farm expenditures amounted to $3,246,000 for livestock and poultry feed and $1,854,000 for hired labor.

The county's principal crop is corn. In 1954 it produced 17,440,100 bushels of corn valued at $26,356,300. In that same year the county had a total of 101,900 head of cattle of all ages, valued at $9,895,900. It also had 159,500 hogs of all ages, valued at $5,070,200.

As of December 30, 1950, total bank deposits in McLean County amounted to $81,757,000. Total savings capital of the county's four savings and loan associations, on the same date, amounted to $9,638,000, with $10,281,000 in first mortgage loans outstanding.

BLOOMINGTON

Now known throughout the nation as the ancestral seat of Adlai E. Stevenson, candidate for President in 1952, Bloomington is the largest city in McLean County as well as the county's seat of justice. As the story of Bloomington is largely the story of McLean County, details of the city's past may be found in the opening historical narrative of the present work.

In 1950 the city had a population of 34,163—an increase of 3.9 per cent over its 1940 figure. In the same year it had a city zone population (including adjacent Normal town) of 43,935. An unofficial survey showed that Bloomington, in 1950, was the center of a retail trading area embracing McLean and parts of other counties with a total population estimated at 176,715. Although the population of Bloomington increased 3.9 per cent between 1940 and 1950, yet a much sharper rise occurred in Normal during the same period—its 1950 population was 39.9 per cent higher than its 1940 figure.

Located on US 66, main highway between Chicago and St. Louis, Bloomington is a leading educational and manufacturing center of central Illinois. Here are located Illinois State Normal University and Illinois Wesleyan University, two outstanding institutions of higher learning.

Bloomington also contains the Soldiers' and Sailors' Children's Home, established in 1867. An annual event of widespread interest here is the American Passion Play, staged at the Scottish Rite Temple, which has one of the largest stages in the Midwest. In the McBarnes Building are shown exhibits of the McLean County Historical Society. The city's principal recreation place is Miller Park, featuring a zoo and aquarium.

Among leading manufacturing plants in Bloomington, and the number of their employees, are the Eureka-Williams Corporation (1,000), Meadow Division of the Thor Corporation (375), Paul F. Beich Candy Company (250), Admiral Corporation (850), General Electric Company (1,200), American Foundry Company (175), Portable Elevator Company (90), Washburn Canning Company (75), Ralston-Purina Company (180), Funk Brothers Seed Company (216), and McGill Foundry Company (65).

One of the oldest newspapers in Illinois is the Bloomington Pantagraph. It was founded in 1846 and was the first newspaper in America to offer Abraham Lincoln as a candidate for President. Today, the Pantagraph has a daily circulation of 37,815. It is edited by H. Clay Tate and published by Loring C. Merwin. The last-named is a cousin of Adlai E. Stevenson. Another publication of Bloomington is the McLean County Farm and Home Bureau News, a monthly with a circulation of 6,000.

NORMAL

Adjacent to Bloomington city, on the north, is the town of Normal, known throughout the state as the seat of Illinois State Normal University. Many details of the town's past may be found in the opening historical narrative of this book. In 1950 the town had a population of 9,772—an increase of 39.9 per cent over its 1940 figure.

First teacher's college in Illinois and the tenth oldest in the nation, Normal University today occupies a 68-acre landscaped campus on which stand 25 buildings. Besides, the university operates University Farm, comprising 192 acres on which stand 12 buildings. The total value of the institution's physical plant—land, buildings, equipment—is $10,000,000.

Normal is mainly a residential town, although it contains a number of canning factories and nurseries. Published here is the Normalite, a weekly newspaper with a circulation of 2,000. It was established in 1898 and at present is published by R. H. and E. B. Craig. Another publication is the Normal Vidette, issued by university students.

STANFORD

In the western part of the county lies the incorporated village of Stanford, which in 1950 had a population of 457. It has a number of retail stores, service establishments, a postoffice and banking facilities. The village is situated on the Gulf, Mobile & Ohio Railroad and contains a spacious grain elevator for the use of local farmers. Stanford was laid out in 1867 by John Armstrong, early settler.

Today, Stanford is the only community in Allin Township, which has a total population of 967. The township was named after James Allin, founder of Bloomington city. First settler of the township was Miles Brooks, who arrived in 1830 and built a log cabin at a place afterwards known as Brooks Grove.

ANCHOR

A small village that serves part of the farming community in the eastern portion of the county is Anchor. In 1950 it had a population of 200. It has several retail stores, automobile and other service establishments, a postoffice and banking facilities. Anchor is located on the Illinois Central Railroad and on State 165.

The village was founded in 1876 and named at the suggestion of George R. Buck, early township supervisor. The township in which it is located, Anchor, has a present population of 643. First to lay out a farm in the township was William T. Stackpole, who arrived in 1855. About ten years later came A. R. Jones, who later was a well-known stock breeder.

ARROWSMITH

Marked by several white grain elevators above its green trees, the incorporated village of Arrowsmith serves as a trading center for a portion of the farming community in the eastern part of the county. It has a present population of 316. Through the village runs the New York, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad. Arrowsmith was surveyed and platted in 1871, one year before the railroad was built through the area. It was named after Ezekiel Arrowsmith, early settler and first supervisor of Arrowsmith Township. Today, the township has a total population of 798. Believed to have been the first settlers of the township were several sons of Jonathan Cheney, an early pioneer of the county. One of them was Thomas Cheney, who arrived about 1833. A later arrival was David Hall, who came in 1837.

BELLFLOWER

In the southeast corner of the county lies the incorporated village of Bellflower, with a present population of 413. It is a tree-shaded community of comfortable white homes and alongside the Illinois Central Railroad, which runs through the village, rise two commodious grain elevators. Also through the village passes US 54. Bellflower was surveyed and platted in 1871 by George N. Black. Today, this village is the principal community of Bellflower Township, which has a total population of 964. The township was given its name by Jesse Richards, early settler and first Justice of the Peace, who "had a great admiration for the Belleflower apple."

OSMAN

Only other community of Bellflower Township is the small village of Osman, with a population of sixty. It is located on the Wabash Railroad and contains numerous grain storage bins of the government's Commodity Credit Corporation. The village was laid out by Moses Osman, a pioneer railroad builder of the area.

BLOOMINGTON TOWNSHIP

HENDRIX

BURNS

* BLOOMINGTON CITY
(see "Bloomington and Normal")

HENDRIX

Just south of Bloomington city lies the small hamlet of Hendrix, consisting of a few houses near the Illinois Central and the Illinois Terminal railroads. It is served by the postoffice at Bloomington. The hamlet was named after John Hendrix, one of the earliest settlers of McLean County, who arrived in 1822. Hendrix is located in Bloomington Township, which has a total population of 2,582. This township originally contained Bloomington city. Some years ago, however, Bloomington city was made into a separate township. In the northeast corner of Bloomington Township is located the Bloomington Municipal Airport.

BURNS

Another small settlement in Bloomington Township is Burns, located just south of Hendrix. Near it passes the Illinois Central and the Illinois Terminal railroads as well as US 51.

COOKSVILLE

Northeast of Bloomington, on the Illinois Central Railroad, is located the incorporated village of Cooksville, with a population of 256. The village has a number of retail stores and automobile and other service establishments as well as a postoffice. Through it runs State 165. Cooksville is the principal community of Blue Mound Township, which has a total population of 782. The township was first settled in 1854. Among early arrivals were John Stagner, David Wheeler, Thomas Arnold, James A. Doyle and William L. Barton.

FLETCHER

Only other community of Blue Mound Township is the small settlement of Fletcher, also located on the Illinois Central Railroad. It is named after John Fletcher, an early farmer of the area. At one time he owned 600 acres here.

POLYCONIC PROJECTION

SAYBROOK

Marked by a water tank above its central business district, the incorporated village of Saybrook serves as a trading center for the farming community in the eastern portion of the county. Around it are dairy, stock, poultry and grain farms. The village has a population of 758. Through it passes the New York, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad.

Saybrook had its origin in a steam sawmill built here in 1846 by Eli Blakesley. Later came a blacksmith shop and a general store, the latter opened by J. B. Beckwith in 1854. Today, Saybrook is the only community in Cheney Grove Township, which has a total population of 1,314. First settler of the township was Jonathan Cheney, who came in 1825 with his wife and eight children. A few years later Robert Cunningham arrived with his family and staked out a claim.

CHENOA

A manufacturing as well as trading center, the incorporated city of Chenoa has a present population of 1,452. Here are a number of canning factories and machine shops as well as a shuffleboard plant. The city is located twenty-five miles north of Bloomington on US 66, main highway of Illinois. It is also on the Illinois Central and Toledo, Peoria & Western railroads.

Chenoa was surveyed and platted in 1856 by Matthew T. Scott, who came from Kentucky and who named it after an Indian chieftain of his native state. A year before Scott came, however, a general emporium, long known as the Farmers' Store, was built here by J. B. Lenney and his brother-in-law, John Bush, Jr. Today, Chenoa city is the principal community of Chenoa Township, which has a total population of 2,032. One of the earliest settlers of the township was Joseph Graham.

MEADOWS

Only other community of Chenoa Township is the small village of Meadows, located west of Chenoa on US 24 and the Toledo, Peoria & Western Railroad. The village was platted in 1877 by Charles Parker, original owner of the site.

CROPSEY

At the eastern edge of McLean County lies the incorporated village of Cropsey, with a population of 200. Through it runs the Illinois Central Railroad. A spacious grain elevator and numerous grain storage bins of the government's Commodity Credit Corporation are located here. The village was laid out in 1858 by Colonel A. J. Cropsey, who received his military title in the Civil War. He was also the first settler of Cropsey Township, which today has a total population of 424. In later years Colonel Cropsey moved to Lincoln, Nebraska, and became a prominent political leader of that state.

SHIRLEY

Founded more than a hundred years ago, the small village of Shirley today has a population of 129. It is located southwest of Bloomington on US 66 and the Gulf, Mobile & Ohio Railroad. On the outskirts of the village are placed numerous grain storage bins of the Commodity Credit Corporation. Shirley began as a railroad station in 1854; it was platted as a town in 1859 by John Foster. Today, this village is the largest community of Dale Township, which has a total population of 778. Earliest settlers of the township were Stephen Webb and William McCord, both of whom came from Tennessee in 1827.

COVELL

Only other community of Dale Township is the small hamlet of Covell, with a population of thirty. It is located northwest of Shirley on the Gulf, Mobile & Ohio Railroad. Covell was platted in 1867 by John L. Rowell.

DANVERS

One of the oldest communities in McLean County is the incorporated village of Danvers, located twelve miles northwest of Bloomington. The village was laid out in 1836 by Israel W. Hall and Matthew Robb and at first was called Concord. Today, Danvers has a population of 762. It is the trading and shipping center of a widespread agricultural area specializing in corn, wheat and soybeans. The village is located on the New York Central and Illinois Terminal railroads and on State 9. It is the principal community of Danvers Township, which has a total population of 1,468. First settler of the township was Ephraim Stout, who came with his family from Tennessee in the fall of 1825.

WOODRUFF

A few miles west of Danvers lies the small settlement of Woodruff. It consists of a few houses adjacent to the New York Central and Illinois Terminal railroads.

ELLSWORTH

Principal community of Dawson Township, east of Bloomington, is the incorporated village of Ellsworth, which in 1950 had a population of 199. It is situated on the New York, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad and contains several lofty grain elevators at the rail side. The village has a postoffice as well as several retail stores and automobile and other service establishments. The township in which it is located, Dawson, has a total population of 870.

PADUA

Only other community of Dawson Township is the small hamlet of Padua, with a population of eighteen. It is served by the postoffice at nearby Ellsworth. The hamlet is located on the New York, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad.

OLD TOWN TOWNSHIP

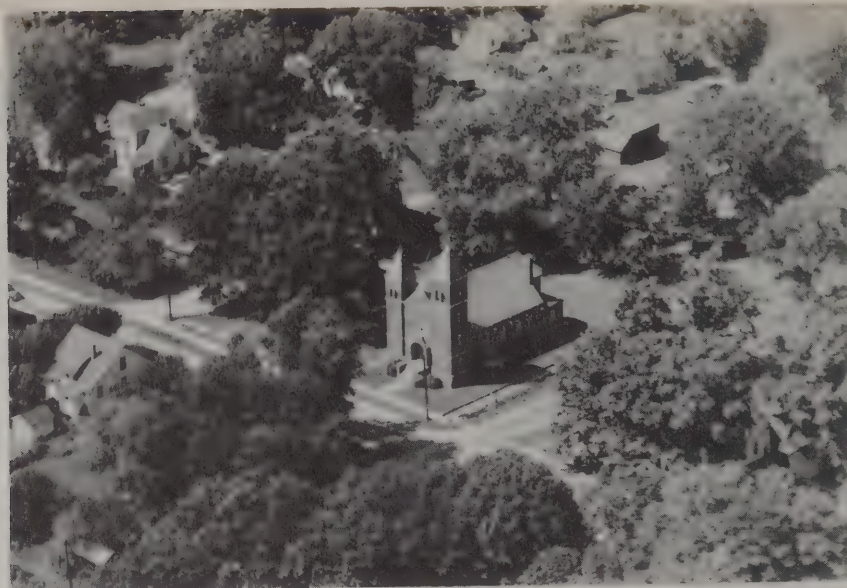

EMPIRE TOWNSHIP

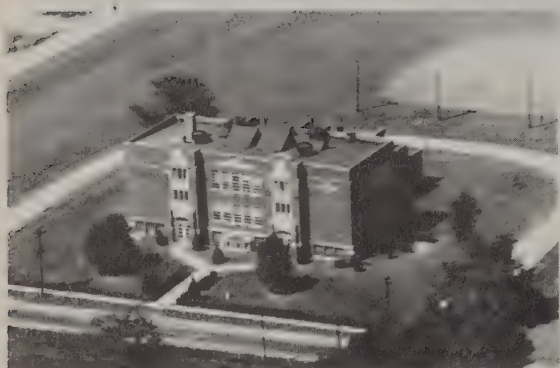

DOWNNS

In the fertile farming country southeast of Bloomington lies the incorporated village of Downs, which today has a population of 299. It has a number of retail stores, automobile and other service establishments, a postoffice and several commodious grain elevators. The village is located on the New York Central Railroad and on US 150. Downs was surveyed and platted in 1870 on the site of an earlier village called Priceville, laid out by P. B. Price, son of an early settler. Today, this village is the only community of Downs Township, with a total population of 998. First settler of the township was Lawson Downs, who came in 1829 and took up a claim at what later was known as Diamond Grove.

YUTON

Only community of Dry Grove Township, northwest of Bloomington, is the small settlement of Yuton, which has a population of ten. It consists of a few houses adjacent to the New York, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad and to US 150. The township in which it is located has a present population of 756. It was first settled by Peter McCullough, who came from Kentucky in 1826. For a time he conducted a wayside inn here for stagecoach travelers on the Peoria-Danville road. He was the father of Colonel William McCullough, a prominent citizen of Bloomington and a Civil War officer.

LE ROY

One of the oldest communities of McLean County is the incorporated city of Le Roy, located seventeen miles southeast of Bloomington. At present it has a population of 1,820. Here are a number of canning factories, hatcheries and creameries, as well as numerous retail stores, automobile and other service establishments, a postoffice and banking facilities. The city is located on the New York Central Railroad and on US 150.

Two of Bloomington's most prominent early citizens, Generals Ashael Gridley and Merritt Covell, laid out the city of Le Roy in 1835. Some years later a race track was established here and horse races were staged each Saturday. Today, Le Roy city is the only community of Empire Township, which has a total population of 2,437. First settler of the township was John Buckles, who arrived with his family from Virginia in 1827. His family consisted of his wife and thirteen children.

FUNKS GROVE

About ten miles southwest of Bloomington, on US 66, lies Funks Grove, nucleus of the famous and extensive seed farms operated here by the Funk Brothers Seed Company. The land holdings of the company total 22,000 acres, most of which are devoted to seed experiments and developments and to livestock breeding. Seed from these acres is shipped to most corn-growing states in America and to many foreign countries.

Funks Grove is the only community of Funks Grove Township, which in 1950 had a total population of 558. First settlers of the township were Isaac Funk and his brother Absalom, together with a close friend of the two, William Brock. All three arrived in the spring of 1824. In the fall of that same year came Isaac and Absalom Funk's brother-in-law, Robert Stubblefield. At a later period Isaac Funk was elected to the Illinois state legislature.

GRIDLEY

Named after one of Bloomington's most distinguished pioneers, General Ashael Gridley, the incorporated village of Gridley today has a population of 817. It is located twenty-five miles north of Bloomington, adjacent to the Woodford County line. Through it passes the Toledo, Peoria & Western Railroad. The village has a number of farm implement and cheese factories, as well as numerous retail stores, automobile and other service establishments, a postoffice and banking facilities.

Gridley was founded in 1856 by G. W. Kent and Thomas Carlisle, two early land agents for General Gridley, who by then had become a leading Bloomington banker. A year after the village was laid out there came the first railroad through the area. Today, Gridley is the only community of Gridley Township, which has a total population of 1,561. First to settle in the township was James Bigger, who arrived in 1833. In the late 1860's numerous families of the Amish sect arrived in the township and established farms.

HUDSON

Just north of Bloomington is located the quiet, elm-shaded village of Hudson in which stand two attractive old frame houses associated with two nationally known men. In one of the houses was born Melville E. Stone, co-founder of the Chicago Daily News and "father" of the Associated Press, and in the other lived, as a boy, Elbert Hubbard, author, editor and master craftsman.

Having a present population of 339, Hudson village was founded in 1836 by a group of pioneers from New York known as the Hudson Colony. The first house in the colony was built by James T. Gildersleeve, and it was in this dwelling that Melville E. Stone was later born. An early physician of Hudson was Dr. Silas Hubbard, father of Elbert Hubbard. Today, Hudson is the only community in Hudson Township, which has a total population of 910. First settlers of the township were Bailey Harbert, his son-in-law Richard Gross, and Mosby Harbert.

CHENOA TOWNSHIP

BLUE MOUND TOWNSHIP

LEXINGTON

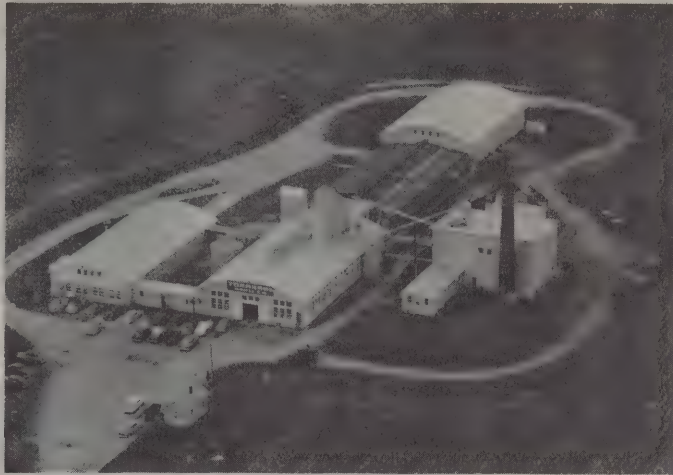

In the Mackinaw River country, northeast of Bloomington, the city of Lexington serves as a leading trading center of the surrounding farm area. It has a population of 1,181. A number of nurseries and corn-processing plants are located here, as well as numerous retail stores, automobile and other service establishments, a postoffice and banking facilities. The city is situated on the Gulf, Mobile & Ohio Railroad and on US 66.

Named after the famous Massachusetts battleground, Lexington was surveyed and platted in 1836 by General Ashael Gridley and James Brown. The town did not fully develop, however, until after the building of the first railroad through the area in 1854. Today, Lexington city is the principal community of Lexington Township, which has a total population of 1,789. First to settle in the township were Conrad Flesher, John Haner and Isaac and Joseph Brumhead, together with their families. All arrived in 1828. Several Kickapoo Indian villages were here when these settlers came.

PLEASANT HILL

Also in Lexington Township is the scattered settlement of Pleasant Hill, located near the Mackinaw River. The settlement began as a townsite laid out in 1840 by Isaac Smalley, who had arrived here in 1838. The Presbyterian Church was built at Pleasant Hill in 1852 and the United Brethren Church in 1858.

COLFAX

Another community of the Mackinaw River area is the incorporated village of Colfax, with a population of 819. It is situated twenty-six miles northeast of Bloomington on the Illinois Central Railroad and on State 165. In addition to numerous retail stores and automobile and other service establishments, Colfax contains a number of cheese factories and commodious grain elevators. It is the only community of Martin Township, which has a total population of 1,345. First to settle in the township were John Wiley and his sons, William, Lytle R. and Silas W. They came in the fall of 1835 and entered land on both sides of the Mackinaw River.

CLARKSVILLE

A few miles east of Lake Bloomington lies the scattered settlement of Clarksville. Originally, a town was planned here in the late 1830's by James Clark, but the town failed to materialize. Clarksville is located in Money Creek Township, which has a total population of 590. First to settle in the township was Louis Soward, who later became familiarly known as "Uncle Louie." He and his family are believed to have arrived in 1825. He was joined afterwards by his brother-in-law, Jacob Harness. Another who came here early was Jacob Spawr, the year of his arrival having been 1826.

ALLIN TOWNSHIP

McLEAN

In the southwest corner of the county is located the incorporated village of McLean, with a population of 667. The village is situated on the Gulf, Mobile & Ohio Railroad and on US 66. It contains a number of retail stores, automobile and other service establishments, a postoffice and a large grain elevator. McLean was surveyed and platted in 1855 by Franklin Price. Today, this village is the only community of Mount Hope Township, which has a total population of 1,313. The township was organized in 1858 and its first supervisor was Daniel Winsor. The name of the township was derived from a settlement project known as the Mount Hope Colony, which failed to materialize in the township. It was organized in Rhode Island in 1835.

NORMAL

For details on the past and present of the town of Normal, see the opening historical narrative of the present work and the chapter on "Bloomington and Normal." The township in which the town is located, bearing the same name, in 1950 had a total population of 10,444. First to settle in the township area was Achilles Deatherage, believed to have arrived in 1831. Later that year came Robert Guthrie. After 1835 the area became known as Major's Grove, a large portion of it having been acquired by the Reverend W. T. Major. He later established a school here known as Major's College. Subsequently, a village was laid out here called North Bloomington. After the Illinois State Normal University was located here in 1857, the name of North Bloomington was changed to Normal.

HOLDER

Founded eighty-four years ago, the village of Holder today has a population of 100. It is located east of Bloomington on the New York, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad. In addition to several retail stores and service establishments, the village contains a large grain elevator and rows of grain storage bins of the Commodity Credit Corporation. Holder was surveyed and platted in 1871 by Charles W. Holder. Today, it is the principal community of Oldtown Township, which has a total population of 730. First to arrive in the township area was William Evans, who came in the spring of 1826. Several years later William Maxwell arrived from North Carolina.

GILLUM

Also in Oldtown Township is the small village of Gillum, with a population of forty. It is served by the postoffice at nearby Bloomington city. Gillum had its origin as a flag stop on the Indianapolis, Bloomington & Western Railroad—now part of the New York Central System.

DE WITT COUNTY

HEYWORTH

Principal shipping point for the grain, stock, poultry and dairy farms in the south end of the county, the incorporated village of Heyworth today has a population of 1,072. It is situated on the Illinois Central and the Illinois Terminal railroads and on US 51. The village contains numerous retail stores, automobile and other service establishments, a postoffice, banking facilities and several tall grain elevators.

Heyworth was founded in 1856 by Campbell Wakefield, early settler of the area. It was named after an English director of the Illinois Central Railroad, which had been built one year before the village was platted. Today, Heyworth is the principal community of Randolph Township, which has a total population of 2,022. First to settle in the township was Gardner Randolph, a second cousin of John Randolph of Roanoke. He came in 1823.

RANDOLPH

Just north of Heyworth is located the small village of Randolph, with a population of twenty. An early resident of the village was John Moore, state legislator, colonel in the Mexican War and state treasurer of Illinois in the early 1850's.

TOWANDA

Just northeast of Bloomington is located the tree-shaded village of Towanda, with a population of 400. It is one of the numerous towns laid out by Jesse W. Fell, founder of Normal and pioneer Illinois land developer. When Fell platted Towanda in 1854, he was associated with Charles W. Holder, who founded the village of Holder. Located on the Gulf, Mobile & Ohio Railroad and on US 66, Towanda today is the principal community of Towanda Township, which has a total population of 959. First to settle in the township was John Trimmer, who came with his family in 1826.

BARNES

Also in Towanda Township is the small hamlet of Barnes, with a population of ten. It is served by the postoffice at nearby Normal. Just southwest of the hamlet is located the Bloomington Municipal Airport.

FACTS ABOUT ISNU

- ISNU will mark 100 years of service to Illinois schools in 1957 when Centennial events will be scheduled to celebrate the founding of the University.

- The oldest state-supported university or college in Illinois, ISNU was founded in 1857 at "North Bloomington," later named "Normal" after the University.

- Teachers for all age groups from kindergarten through junior college and for all types of education are prepared at ISNU.

- Degrees granted by ISNU are the Bachelor of Science in Education and the Master of Science in Education. The graduate school, opened in 1944, now has a complete program of advanced work.

- The Old Main building, first used in 1860, is one of the oldest in use anywhere for a state program of teacher education.

- The Special Education Building, state center for the education of teachers for exceptional children, was completed and first used in 1950.

- There are 25 major buildings on the 68-acre main campus. The University farm, covering 192 acres, is the location of 12 additional buildings.

- Many of the trees on the campus were planted soon after ISNU was established, and some are at least 90 years old.

- The total value of the land, buildings, and equipment in use for teacher education at ISNU is well over $11,000,000.

- The Bloomington-Normal community in which ISNU is located now has a population of about 45,000.

- With more than 2,600 resident students, more than 1,000 laboratory school students, and more than 400 academic and non-academic employees—the campus itself has a population of approximately 4,000 persons. In addition the University offers extension classes in off-campus centers for hundreds of students annually.

This guide to the Illinois State Normal University campus is an aid for visitors and new students in locating academic and administrative offices as well as in finding certain individuals and buildings. The directory on this page lists the offices which serve as centers for various activities and functions in each of the major campus buildings. In both the building directory and the index, on the opposite side of the page, the main office of each academic department or division is given as well as the offices which are concerned with many other administrative services.

The campus map gives a picture of the entire campus in addition to serving as a reference to the location of each building. The names included in the index are those of the faculty and staff members who have administrative duties in relation to the many services and activities necessary to the operation of the University. All faculty and staff members are glad to answer more specific questions about ISNU which cannot be covered in this guide.

ADAMS TOWNSHIP

GLEN AVON

In the southeast corner of the county lies the small village of Glen Avon, with a population of twenty. It is served by the postoffice at nearby Bellflower (in Bellflower Township). The village is situated on the Illinois Central Railroad. It is the principal community of West Township, which has a total population of 677. Among early settlers of the township area were Henry West, after whom the township is named, and John Weedman, after whom the hamlet of Weedman is named. They came in 1850 and 1851, respectively.

KUMLER

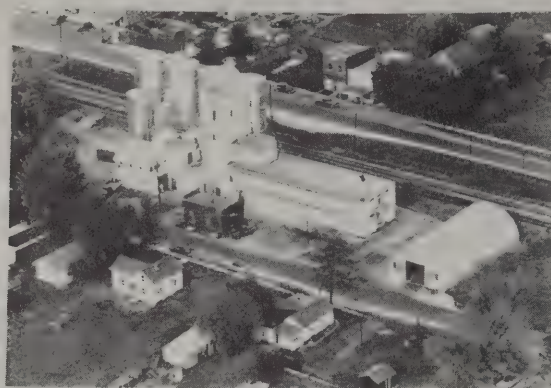

Also in West Township is the small settlement of Kumler. It is located on the Illinois Central Railroad. The settlement derived its name from the Reverend John Kumler, a pioneer landowner of the area.

WEEDMAN

Another small settlement in West Township is Weedman, which also is on the Illinois Central Railroad. It was named after John Weedman, early settler of the area.

CARLOCK

Principal trading center of the farming area in the northwest part of the county is the village of Carlock, with a population of 315. It is located on the New York, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad and on US 150. The village contains a number of retail stores, service establishments and a postoffice. It was named after Abraham W. Carlock, an early settler of the area. Today, Carlock is the only community of White Oak Township, which has a total population of 598. First to settle in the township was Smith Denman, who came in 1829. A little later that year came Thomas Dixon and Littleton Sanford.

WESTON

In the northeast corner of the county, adjacent to the Livingston County line, is located the incorporated village of Weston, with a population of 287. Through it runs the Toledo, Peoria & Western Railroad. The village was surveyed and platted in 1866 by W. F. Bryan, of Peoria. Today, Weston is the only community in Yates Township, which has a total population of 618. An early settler of the township was David Vance, who arrived in 1866. He was later elected school treasurer and was one of the founders of the Methodist Church in the township.

ILLINOIS

"Land of Lincoln"

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The articles and other textual material contained in the following pages are from the Illinois Blue Book, 1953-1954, edited by Secretary of State Charles F. Carpentier. For permission to use this material the Publisher is indebted to Secretary of State Charles F. Carpentier. . . For permission to use the photographs of state parks, state memorials and conservation areas included in the following pages, the Publisher is indebted to Mr. Robert G. Miley, Superintendent of the Division of Parks & Memorials of the Illinois Department of Conservation, and to Mr. Carl G. Hodges, Superintendent of the Division of Reports in the Illinois Department of Finance.

The "Illinois — Land of Lincoln" insignia used on many publications and exhibits of the Secretary of State's office was designed by Secretary Carpentier within a few days after he took office in January, 1953. Mr. Carpentier wanted a distinctive original marking to identify material issued by his office, but also one which would be a brief, appropriate description of and tribute to the State.

The insignia became popular immediately, and in the 1953 session of the General Assembly, Senator Fred J. Hart of Streator introduced a bill in the Senate which would require that it be reproduced on Illinois motor vehicle license plates.

When investigation revealed that this would materially increase the cost of the license plates, Senator Hart was consulted and asked to amend his bill to make placing of the insignia on the plates discretionary with the Secretary. Senator Hart agreed to make the amendment, and since then Illinois license plates have carried the words, Land of Lincoln

The Great Seal of Illinois

THE PRESENT GREAT SEAL of Illinois was authorized by the Assembly on March 7, 1867, but was not used until October 26, 1868, and an unusual situation is involved in the history of the seal.

According to Brand Whitlock, famous author, the first of all the seals used for official documents in what is now Illinois, was that of 1788. It was known as "The Seal of the Territory of the U. S. N. W. of the Ohio River." The words were within two concentric circles. The center of the seal showed a river, on which rode two canoes, with woodland showing beyond the river.

In 1800, when Indiana Territory, which included Illinois, was created, a new seal was needed. This situation was met by duplicating the seal of the Northwest Territory, the only change being the substitution of the words "Indiana Territory" within the circles.

When Illinois Territory came into existence in 1809, still another seal was required. So the fathers made an almost exact copy of the Great Seal of the United States, merely eliminating the "E Pluribus Unum." This seal was first used on February 4, 1810.

When Illinois gained Statehood in 1818, the second session of the First General Assembly decreed on February 19, 1819, that it was the duty of the Secretary of State to procure a permanent State seal, as was to be agreed upon by the Governor—Shadrach Bond—and the Justices of the Supreme Court—Thomas C. Browne, William P. Foster, Joseph Phillips, John Reynolds and William Wilson. The new seal was another duplicate of the United States seal, but differed from the preceding seal of the Territory in that the Eagle held a scroll in its beak on which were the words of the State motto, "State Sovereignty—National Union." As previously, the eagle held a bunch of arrows in one talon, an olive branch in the other, with the escutcheon on its chest.

Seal of the Illinois Territory, sketched by the late Mr. Brand Whitlock and reproduced in the Journal of the Illinois Historical Society.

First Great Seal, adopted after Statehood. Sketched by the late Mr. Whitlock and reproduced from the Illinois Historical Society's Journal.

This seal remained in use until late October, 1868 when inexplicable activities by Sharon Tyndale, Secretary of State, brought about the creation of the seal which exists today.

Tyndale, in January 1867, told Senator Allen C. Fuller that the old seal had outlived its usefulness, that a new one was necessary, and asked Fuller to sponsor a bill to change it. The bill was presented to the Senate January 7, 1867, and passed without comment. It went to the House and when read there on January 10th, Assemblyman Dinsmore from Whiteside County suggested an amendment to read that the new seal was to be "an exact facsimile of the present seal."

The amendment was defeated 31 to 46.

Dinsmore's beaten amendment created immediate suspicion of the bill. It was recalled to the Senate. The vote that approved the bill was reconsidered. It was discovered that Tyndale planned in the new seal to reverse the wording on the scroll, changing it from "State Sovereignty, National Union" to "National Union, State Sovereignty." The recent Civil War, he believed, put national union above state sovereignty. But the change that he contemplated was thwarted by a Senate amendment which ruled that the words on the scroll of the renewed seal were to correspond with the old seal in every particular.

The bill was passed March 7, 1867 in its amended form.

The old seal continued in use until its last official imprint on October 24, 1868, and the final impressions were sharp and clear, indicating it was not "badly out of order" as had been claimed by Tyndale.

The new seal, which is the present one and which was designed by Tyndale, is a radical departure from the old. When it first appeared, and all through the years since, the reasons for the inside design, made at Tyndale's direction, have puzzled many beholders.

The shield no longer adorns the eagle's breast, but is in a titled position on the ground; the arrows are gone; the branch bears little resemblance to an olive branch; the eagle is sitting on a boulder in a prairie, and a rising sun shines on a distant Eastern horizon. Strangest of all, the wording on the seal ignores the amendment and "National Union" appears above "State Sovereignty."

Second Great Seal of the State of Illinois. While this design differed from the first Seal, it remained unchanged in a heraldic sense.

Present Great Seal bearing altered design introduced in 1868. This design is far removed in meaning from that of the original State Seal.

STATE FLAG OF ILLINOIS

State Flag of Illinois

ILLINOIS STATE FLAG was officially adopted on July 6, 1915, after a vigorous campaign by Mrs. Ella Park Lawrence, State Regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Early in 1912, Mrs. Lawrence began visiting local D. A. R. chapters throughout Illinois seeking cooperation in promoting selection of an official State banner to place in the Continental Memorial Hall in Washington, D. C. In 1913, Mrs. Lawrence offered a prize of $25.00 to the Illinois D. A. R. chapter submitting the best design for the banner. She also wrote to members of the General Assembly seeking their cooperation.

Four judges were then selected to choose the winning design. Thirty-five designs were submitted and the Rockford Chapter entry was chosen as Illinois' future emblem.

State Senator Raymond D. Meeker introduced the bill which was to legalize the flag. After passage in the Senate it was pushed through the House of Representatives, despite an overcrowded calendar.

The measure automatically became a law July 6, 1915, when the Governor failed to affix his signature to the bill.

The first official flag, made in Washington, D. C., was three by five feet in size, of white silk. Flags were given by Mrs. Lawrence to Secretary of State; Daughters of the American Revolution in Illinois; National Society Daughters of the American Revolution in Illinois; National Society Daughters of the American Revolution (to hang in Memorial Continental Hall, Washington, D. C.); Rebecca Parks Chapter, Galesburg and the Illinois State Historical Society.

Visitors to Springfield cannot fail to notice the State Banner flanking the Stars and Stripes in the Rotunda at the State House. In the same juxtaposition it appears in the office of the Secretary of State. It is flown on ceremonial days by numerous patriotic bodies throughout the State. For officials and the public alike it stands as a reminder of our greatness as a State and our pride in our membership in the United States of America.

State's Official Tree, Flower and Bird Chosen by School Children

THE MIGHTY OAK is the State tree of Illinois.

The shrinking violet is the State flower.

And the vivid red cardinal, with its lilting song, is the State bird of Illinois.

All three were chosen through ballot by school children, with the selections made official by acts of the Assembly.

In 1907, Mrs. James C. Fessler, of Rochelle, suggested that school children be permitted to vote on the State tree and the State flower. The ballots were distributed in November 1907, and the results were as follows:

State Tree

Oak	21,897
Maple	16,517
Elm	5,082

State Flower

Violet	16,583
Wild Rose	12,628
Golden Rod	4,315

In January 1908, Senator Andrew J. Jackson, of Rockford, introduced a bill making the Oak the official tree of Illinois, and the Violet the State flower. The measure was adopted in February, 1908.

There are 19 species of Oak trees in Illinois, eleven belonging to the black Oak group, the others to the white.

The Violet grows in practically every section of Illinois, and, in Springtime blankets the landscapes as far as eye can see.

In 1928 the Macomb branch of the National Federation of Professional Women's Club decided that there should be an official State bird. The idea was submitted to the Superintendent of Public Instruction, who approved, and a list of five birds, conspicuous in Illinois, was submitted to the school children that year, for balloting. A blank space was included in the event the children wished to vote for birds other than the five named.

A total of 128,664 ballots were cast in 96 counties, and the result was as follows:

Cardinal	39,226
Blue Bird	30,306
Meadow Lark	16,237
Quail	15,843
Oriole	15,449

A bill authorizing the Cardinal as the official State bird was introduced in the 56th Assembly by Representative James Foster, and adopted June 4, 1929.

The Cardinal, officially known as Cardinalis Cardinalis, sometimes is called the redbird and also the Cardinal grosbeak. The adult bird is about eight inches long. It has a head with a conspicuous crest, but it is only the male whose coloring is a brilliant red. The female shade is olive gray.

Official State Song "Illinois"

AN ACT ESTABLISHING A STATE SONG.

Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois represented in the General Assembly:

SECTION 1. The song "Illinois" having words written by C. H. Chamberlain* and music composed by Archibald Johnston, is established as the official State Song of Illinois.

[* Correspondence, dating back more than forty years, recently acquired by the State Historical Library, indicates several mistakes that have become almost as well established as the song itself, according to Dr. Harry E. Pratt, State Historian. One has to do with spelling of the name of the author of the song, Charles H. Chamberlin. Usually it is spelled Chamberlain, which is incorrect. Two of the letters are from Oscar B. Knight, a friend of Chamberlin, for whom the song was written and who first sang it. Previously, the date it was written has been given as between 1890 and 1894. Knight says, in one of these letters, that he suggested the material for the fourth and final verse and that Chamberlin finished the song in his office in the summer of 1892.

This differs from the usual version that the song was written earlier and first used in the campaign to have the World's Columbian Exposition awarded to Chicago. The Knight letter also states that in the spring of 1892 Chamberlin had written a campaign song with the refrain, "April fool, April fool," (the election was on April 1), to be sung to the tune of "Baby Mine." He said he knew of no other inspiration" for "Illinois."]

Words of the song follow:

ILLINOIS

By the rivers gently flowing, Illinois, Illinois,
O'er thy prairies verdant growing, Illinois, Illinois,
Comes an echo on the breeze,
Rustling through the leafy trees, and its mellow tones are these,
Illinois, Illinois,
And its mellow tones are these, Illinois.

From a wilderness of prairies, Illinois, Illinois,
Straight thy way and never varies, Illinois, Illinois,
Till upon the inland sea,
Stands thy great commercial tree, turning all the world to thee,
Illinois, Illinois,
Turning all the world to thee, Illinois.

When you heard your country calling, Illinois, Illinois
Where the shot and shell were falling, Illinois, Illinois,
When the Southern host with-drew,
Pitting Gray against the Blue, There were none more brave than you,
Illinois, Illinois
There were none more brave than you, Illinois.

Not without thy wondrous story, Illinois, Illinois,
Can be writ the nation's glory, Illinois, Illinois,
On the record of thy years,
Abraham Lincoln's name appears, Grant and Logan, and our tears,
Illinois, Illinois,
Grant and Logan, and our tears, Illinois.

Chronology of Illinois History

1673-1954

- 1673 Marquette and Jolliet descend the Mississippi to the Arkansas and return by way of the Illinois River.
- 1674-75 Marquette and two companions spend the winter in a shelter at the mouth of the Chicago River.
- 1675 Marquette founds the mission of the Immaculate Conception at the Great Village of the Illinois, near present Utica.
- 1680 La Salle builds Fort Crevecoeur on the Illinois River, near present Peoria.
- 1682 La Salle builds Fort St. Louis on Starved Rock.
- 1691-92 Tonti and LaForest build the second Fort St. Louis, better known as Fort Pimiteoui, on Lake Peoria.
- 1696 Father Pinet establishes the mission of the Guardian Angel at Chicago. After a troubled existence of about four years this Jesuit venture among the Miami is abandoned, and Father Pinet leaves Chicago to labor among the Illinois Indians in the Cahokia region.
- 1699 Montigny and St. Cosme, priests of the Seminary of Foreign Missions, establish the Holy Family mission at Cahokia.
- 1703 In APRIL, the Jesuits transfer their Illinois Indian mission from Des Peres (present St. Louis) to the Kaskaskia River, thus founding the town of Kaskaskia.
- 1717 By decree of the French Royal Council, Illinois is to be governed from Louisiana.
- 1718 Boisbriant, first commandant of Illinois, arrives at Kaskaskia.
- 1718-30 Fox War. Hostile tribes, under the leadership of the Fox Indians, form a confederacy that menaces the Illinois Country. Their depredations continue until the Fox are defeated and practically annihilated by a combination of French and friendly Indians.
- 1719 Fort de Chartres, near present Prairie du Rocher, is begun. It is completed the following year, and becomes the seat of military and civil government in Illinois.
- 1725 Dutisne becomes commandant, succeeding Boisbriant.
- 1726 De Liette succeeds Dutisne as commandant.
- 1727 Fort de Chartres, fallen into disrepair and recently inundated by Mississippi floods, is rebuilt.
- 1730 St. Ange succeeds De Liette as commandant of the Illinois.
- 1732 St. Ange builds a new Fort de Chartres half a mile farther back from the river.
- 1733 Dartaguiette replaces St. Ange as commandant.
- 1736 La Buissoniere succeeds Dartaguiette as commandant.
- 1740 On the death of La Buissoniere, the Sieur de St. Clair becomes acting commandant.
- 1742 Bertet, the new commandant, arrives at Fort de Chartres.
- 1744-48 King George's War (War of the Austrian Succession). Territorially, the Treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle maintains the status quo in the Illinois Country, but the British are beginning to make serious inroads on the French control of the Indians.
- 1749 The Sieur de St. Clair serves as acting commandant on the death of Bertet.
- 1751 Makarty, the new commandant, reaches Illinois.
- 1753 The construction of a new Fort de Chartres is begun, this time to be built of stone.

- 1755-63 French and Indian War (Seven Years' War). The conclusion of this, the final struggle between France and Great Britain for colonial supremacy in North America, marks the end of French rule in America.
- 1757 The French build Fort Ascension, later known as Fort Massac, on the Ohio River, near present Metropolis.
- 1760 Neyon de Villiers succeeds Makarty as commandant.
- 1763 By the Treaty of Paris, France cedes her North American possessions east of the Mississippi to Great Britain.
- 1764 St. Ange de Bellerive becomes commandant of the Illinois Country.
- 1765 Capt. Thomas Stirling occupies Fort de Chartres for the British. Maj. Robert Farmar replaces Stirling as commandant.
- 1766 Lt. Col. John Reed becomes the commandant, and is succeeded by Capt. Hugh Forbes.
- 1768 Lt. Col. John Wilkins becomes the commandant, and establishes a civil court at Fort de Chartres.
- 1771 Maj. Isaac Hamilton succeeds Wilkins as commandant.
- 1772 The British destroy Fort de Chartres, already damaged by floods. Capt. Hugh Lord, commandant, and a small garrison remain at Kaskaskia.
- 1774 In JUNE, by the Quebec Act, which extends the boundaries of Quebec to the Ohio on the south and to the Mississippi on the west, the Illinois Country is brought under the control of an appointive governor and council.
- 1776 Capt. Hugh Lord, recalled by the British, appoints de Rocheblave as his successor at Kaskaskia.
- 1777 Matthew Johnson is officially appointed to succeed Captain Lord, but he never comes to the Illinois Country. De Rocheblave continues in actual command at Kaskaskia.
- 1778 JULY 4—George Rogers Clark and his small army take Kaskaskia by surprise. The other French and Indian villages accept the new order, and Illinois is organized as a county of Virginia.
- 1779 FEBRUARY 24—Marching overland from Kaskaskia, George Rogers Clark captures Vincennes, which had been retaken by the British after it declared its allegiance to Virginia. In MAY, John Todd, first county lieutenant, reaches Illinois and organizes the civil government.
- 1783 The Treaty of Paris, ending the War of Independence, extends the United States boundary to the Mississippi, with the exception of East and West Florida.
- 1784 MARCH 1—Virginia relinquishes her claim on Illinois to the United States, thus paving the way for the organization of this territory.

Old Battle Flags of Illinois

THE ILLINOIS REGIMENTAL FLAGS which flew through four wars—Mexican, Civil, Spanish-American and World War I—have hallowed places in Memorial Hall, on the first floor of the Centennial Building in Springfield.

There are two from the Mexican War, of 1846-1848; 346 from the Civil War, 1861-1865; 22 from the Spanish-American War, 1898, and 93 from the World War I in which Illinois' men played such gallant roles.

The Mexican, Civil, and Spanish War flags, torn and faded in combat, have been quilted between sheets of black netting to prevent further deterioration. The delicate task necessitated the efforts of 20 women, who worked almost five years on the project. These flags have lost almost all their color, but the World War flags, which were not carried into battle, retain much of their original rich shades.

In addition to the flags, Memorial Hall contains the head-dress of the soldiers in the four wars.

Spaced around the architrave beneath the gold-leafed ceiling of the hall are the names of 28 of Illinois' war heroes: Smith D. Atkins, Edward Dickinson Baker, William H. Bissel, Napoleon Bonaparte Buford, William Passmore Carlin, Elon John Farnsworth, Ulysses S. Grant, Benjamin H. Grierson, Martin D. Hardin, James D. Henry, Stephen A. Hurlbut, John Basil Turchin, John A. Logan, Wesley Merritt, James Dady Morgan, James A. Mulligan, John Alexander McClelland, Richard J. Oglesby, John McCauley Palmer, John Pope, Benjamin Mayberry Prentiss, John A. Rawlins, Richard Rowett, John McAllister Schofield, James Shields, George W. Smith, William Henry Lamb Wallace, and James Harrison Wilson.

McDONOUGH, for Thomas McDonough, a Commodore of the United States Navy, who commanded the fleet on Lake Champlain in a successful engagement with the British fleet, near Plattsburg, 1814.

PERRY, for Oliver Hazard Perry, a Commodore of the United States Navy, who won distinction as Commander of the fleet in the battle of Lake Erie, in 1813.

Twenty-one counties were named for statesmen and politicians, not citizens of Illinois, some of whom had distinguished themselves in military as well as civil life.

CALHOUN, for John C. Calhoun, a lawyer and statesman, Representative in Congress and United States Senator from South Carolina, Secretary of War under Monroe, Vice-President of the United States, and Secretary of State under Tyler, and was recognized as the "Father of Nullification."

CARROLL, for Charles Carroll of Carrollton, a statesman of the Revolutionary period, signer of the Declaration of Independence, and United States Senator from Maryland.

CASS, for Lewis Cass, a soldier as well as statesman, Territorial Governor of Michigan, Minister to France, United States Senator from Michigan, Secretary of War under Jackson, Secretary of State under Buchanan, and at one time a prominent candidate for the Presidency.

CLAY, for Henry Clay, a statesman and political orator, Representative in Congress and United States Senator from Kentucky, three times Speaker of the United States House of Representatives, famous as the author of the political measures known as the "Missouri Compromise," and a prominent candidate for the Presidency.

CLINTON, for DeWitt Clinton, a distinguished lawyer, financier and statesman, Mayor of the city and Governor of the State of New York, United States Senator and chief promoter of the Erie Canal.

CRAWFORD, for William H. Crawford of Georgia, United States Senator, Minister of France, Secretary of War, Secretary of the Treasury, and a prominent candidate for the Presidency in 1824.

DEWITT, for DeWitt Clinton. (See Clinton County.)

FRANKLIN, for Benjamin Franklin, philosopher, statesman, diplomatist, author, printer, a member of the Continental Congress, Ambassador to France, and (before the Revolution) Deputy Postmaster General of the British Colonies in America.

GALLATIN, for Albert Gallatin, a statesman and financier, Representative in Congress from Pennsylvania, Secretary of the Treasury of the United States, and Minister to France and England.

GRUNDY, for Felix Grundy, a lawyer and politician, United States Senator from Tennessee, and Attorney General of the United States.

HAMILTON, for Alexander Hamilton, a soldier, statesman, author and financier, aid on the staff of Washington during the Revolution, a member of the Continental Congress, first Secretary of the Treasury (1789-1795), and Commander-in-Chief of the United States Army in 1799.

HANCOCK, for John Hancock, a prominent figure of the Revolutionary period, a Major General of militia, President of the Continental Congress, first signer of the Declaration, and first Governor of the State of Massachusetts.

HENRY, for Patrick Henry, a lawyer, orator and statesman of the Revolutionary period, a member of the Continental Congress, and Governor of Virginia.

KENDALL, for Amos Kendall, a successful politician and journalist, Postmaster General under Jackson, and as partner of S. F. B. Morse, the inventor of the electric telegraph, he contributed largely to the commercial success of that invention.

LEE, for Richard Henry Lee, an orator and statesman of the Revolutionary period, a member of the Continental Congress, a Representative in Congress and United States Senator from Virginia.

LIVINGSTON, for Edward Livingston, a lawyer and statesman, Mayor of New York City, Representative in Congress from New York and later from Louisiana, United States Senator from the latter state, Secretary of State under Jackson, and United States Minister to France.

MACON, for Nathaniel Macon, a Colonel during the Revolution and later a Representative and United States Senator in Congress from North Carolina. He strenuously opposed the adoption of the United States Constitution as conferring powers on the Federal government which should be reserved to the States.

MARSHALL, for John Marshall, a soldier of the Revolution, statesman, author and jurist, Ambassador to France, Representative in Congress from Virginia, Secretary of State and Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court.

RANDOLPH, for Edmund Randolph, a soldier of the Revolution, a lawyer and statesman, member of the Continental Congress, Attorney General and Governor of Virginia, Secretary of State of the United States and Attorney General under Washington.

SHELBY, for Isaac Shelby, a soldier of the Revolution and Indian wars, Governor of Kentucky (1792-1796) and again (1812-1816). He commanded the Kentucky troops in the battle of the Thames in the War of 1812.

TAZEWELL, for Lyttleton W. Tazewell, an eminent lawyer, Governor, Representative in Congress, and United States Senator from Virginia.

Nine counties of Illinois adopted the names of counties of other states through the influence of emigrants from the counties whose names were thus adopted: CHAMPAIGN and RICHLAND from Ohio; CHRISTIAN, HARDIN, HENDERSON, MASON, SCOTT, and WOODFORD from Kentucky; and WILLIAMSON from Tennessee.

Seven counties bear Indian names, given originally, as a general rule, to a creek, river or lake, and afterward transferred to the county. These named are IROQUOIS, KANKAKEE, MACOUPIN, PEORIA, SANGAMON, WABASH and WINNEBAGO.

Fourteen other counties derive their names from sources so diverse that they cannot easily be classified under any special head.

BOONE, for Daniel Boone, a pioneer hunter, Indian fighter and pathfinder of the early days.

BUREAU, for Pierre Buero, a French trader with the Indians.

CUMBERLAND, from the Cumberland road, named in its turn from the town of Cumberland, Maryland, which derived its name from the mountain range of the same name adopted, presumably, from the Cumberland mountains of Great Britain.

DUPAGE, from a small river of the same name said to have derived its name from a French trapper and trader of that region.

EFFINGHAM, for Lord Edward Effingham, who resigned his commission as general in the British army, 1775, refusing to serve in the war against the colonies.

FULTON, for Robert Fulton, the first successful builder of steamboats on American waters.

JERSEY, for the State of New Jersey, which derived its name from the Isle of Jersey, Great Britain.

LAKE, for Lake Michigan.

LA SALLE, for Robert de LaSalle, the French explorer who effected the first white settlements in Illinois and explored the Mississippi to the Gulf.

MASSAC, from Fort Massac, a corruption of a French surname, Massiac.

ROCK ISLAND, from the rock island of that name in the Mississippi.

SALINE, from Saline creek, so called on account of numerous salt springs in that locality.

UNION, from the federal union of the American States.

VERMILION, from the river of that name, the principal branches of which flow through the county.

Illinois' State Capitols

MANY YEARS AGO, in 1703, a group of Jesuits transferred their Illinois Indian Mission from Des Peres (present St. Louis) to the juncture of the Kaskaskia and Mississippi Rivers in what later was to be known as Randolph County.

This little settlement became Kaskaskia and on December 3, 1818, when Illinois was admitted to the Federal Union, it became the commonwealth's first Capital. Since that historic day, Illinois has had three governmental seats (Kaskaskia, Vandalia and Springfield) and six Capitols.

For more than a century, before becoming Illinois' fount of government, Kaskaskia played an important role in Illinois history, Kaskaskia was the scene of one of George Rogers Clark's early triumphs when he and a little army of Virginians captured it from the British in 1778. In 1809, when Illinois Territory was created by an Act of Congress, Kaskaskia was chosen as the territorial capital and it was the center of population when Nathaniel Pope petitioned Congress for statehood for his adopted territory on January 16, 1818. The Congressional Enabling Act was passed and Illinois became the 21st state on December 3, 1818.

The first Capitol, or State House, was rented. It was a two story brick building. The House of Representatives occupied the lower floor and on the floor above was the Senate Chambers. Meeting in this unimpressive setting, the first General Assembly composed of 13 Senators and 27 Representatives petitioned the Congress for a grant of land to serve as a new State Capital. The request was granted and a committee of five was named to choose the site. They decided upon "Reeves Bluff," later to be known as Vandalia, which was about 80 miles northeast on the Kaskaskia River from Kaskaskia.

The removal of the Capital from Kaskaskia to Vandalia grew out of a mania for speculation on the part of some of the State's early citizens who thought that money could be made by starting a land boom in a new location.

The origin of the name "Vandalia" is not known. For many years credence was given to the story that some wag managed to convince the founders that the spot had been inhabited by an extinct tribe of savages known as "Vandals." The most plausible suggested origin is that of Vandalia, Ohio. In 1775, forty-five years before the establishment of the new Illinois town, the Ohio Land Company's name had been changed to the Vandalia Land Company. From this sprang the name Vandalia, Ohio. Regardless of where the name originated the "city planners" proceeded to justify the story of vandalism by uprooting all the trees which might have shaded the public square and streets.

Kaskaskia Destroyed by River

After Vandalia became the Capital in 1820, Kaskaskia deteriorated, gradually disappearing under the waters of the Mississippi River which lapped its shores. In 1881, the river went on one of its many rampages, changed its course, moving eastward and then southwest to find its old channel. When the turbulent water had subsided an island had been created and a considerable portion of the ancient capital city had been washed away. Each recurring spring flood encroached further upon the site until the last vestige of historic Kaskaskia slipped into the Mississippi.

On the remaining portion of the present island is a farming community of around 150 persons and the island still bears the name Kaskaskia, perhaps to perpetuate in memory the little Capital which lies beneath the muddy Mississippi.

Original Capitol at Vandalia

A plain two story frame structure was erected in Vandalia. The lower floor was devoted to one room for the House of Representatives. A passage and stairway led to the second floor which consisted of two rooms, the larger for the Senate Chamber and the smaller for the Council of Revision. The Secretary of State, Auditor and Treasurer occupied rented offices detached from the Capitol.

The State's Archives, consisting of a small wagonload, were removed from Kaskaskia to Vandalia by Sidney Breese, then clerk to the Secretary of State who later became a Supreme Court Justice and U. S. Senator. Breese was paid $25.00 for his labor.

The first session of the Second General Assembly met in the first State-owned Capitol on December 4, 1820 and during its sitting passed an act making Vandalia the seat of government for the next twenty years.

On December 9, 1823 fire destroyed this first State-owned Capitol. During the summer of 1824 a new building was constructed of brick at a cost of $15,000. Soon thereafter agitation was started for the removal of the Capital to a site nearer the geographical center of the State. This sentiment caused the General Assembly to pass an act in 1833 whereby the voters at the following general election could decide the location for a new capital city.

The sites on which the vote was to be taken were Vandalia, Jacksonville, Springfield, Peoria, Alton, and the State's geographical center. Alton received the greatest number of votes but the margin was so small as to be inconclusive, and the vote was not announced officially as it would undoubtedly have been rejected by the next General Assembly. So the suggested removal from Vandalia was dropped until the 1836-37 session revived the question.

Lincoln Suggests Springfield

Residents of Vandalia were determined that they should retain the Capital so in the summer of 1836, without authorization, and while the legislature was recessed, they tore down the old Capitol. In its stead they erected a State House costing $16,000. This gesture, however, was in vain for with the return of the General Assembly Lincoln was successful in having Springfield named as Illinois' new Capital.

Matters then took a very different turn for the proposal was interesting a rising young lawyer known as Abraham Lincoln who represented Sangamon County. Lincoln introduced a bill providing for removal of the Capital of Illinois to Springfield, and he was backed by eight fellow members who with him were known as the Long Nine because their aggregate height was 54 feet.

On February 25, 1837, the Assembly passed a bill providing that the Capital be moved from Vandalia to some place nearer the center of the State and three days later Springfield was chosen as the new Capital City. Because the Act of Assembly in 1820, Vandalia was to continue as the Capital until December 1, 1840, but on June 20, 1839, Governor Thomas Carlin issued a proclamation that all State records be removed to Springfield by July 4, 1839.

The Eleventh General Assembly returned the Vandalia Capitol to the county of Fayette and the city of Vandalia, and the old State House still stands, though now again is State property.

The cornerstone of the State's fourth Capitol was laid at Springfield on July 4, 1837. After many delays the building finally was completed in 1853 at a total cost of $260,000 double its original estimate.

The building occupied the center of the square nearly three acres in extent, and was constructed of cut stone brought from a quarry six miles away. The building was considered one of the architectural wonders of the State.

This building is rich in Lincoln associations. After Lincoln became a resident of Springfield in 1837 he was, of course, one of the regular frequenters of the State House. In addition to serving in the legislature he appeared and argued nearly 250 cases before the Supreme Court, located in the edifice, and made frequent use of the State and Supreme Court libraries. In this building he often took public issue with Douglas, here he made his famous "House divided against itself" speech, here were his headquarters during his 1860 campaign for the Presidency, and here finally his remains rested on May 3-4, 1865, before burial at Oak Ridge.

Present State House Planned in 1867

Illinois continued to prosper and gain in population and soon it was apparent that a much larger Capitol would be needed. The enabling act was passed by the 25th General Assembly on February 24, 1867. This was the fifth of the buildings owned by the State and the one in use today.

The old Capitol at Springfield was sold to Sangamon County for $200,000. The deed was executed October 23, 1869, nearly seven years before the present Capitol was used. Certain alterations were made to this old building, the most remarkable one being that of raising the massive two-story structure high off the ground and while suspended, the present ground floor of the Sangamon County Court House was built.

Ground was broken for the present Capitol, March 11, 1868. Formal laying of the cornerstone took place October 5th of the same year. Still unfinished, the building was first occupied in 1876. Twenty-one years after the Legislature first authorized its construction, the building finally was completed. Originally construction costs were limited to $3,000,000, but before completion expenditures amounted to more than $4,500,000.

The present Capitol, situated on a nine acre plot, is in the form of a Latin Cross. The circular foundation, 92½ feet in diameter, upon which the vast dome rests, is 25½ feet below the grade line, set on solid rock. It is interesting to know that many feet below runs one of the richest veins of Illinois coal.

The walls supporting the dome are 17 feet thick from the foundation to the first story. They are built of granular magnesian limestone from quarries of Hancock County.

The outer walls of the superstructure are of Niagara limestone, that of the lower stories from the quarries of Joliet, and that of the upper stories from Lemont.

The extreme length of the building from north to south is 379 feet, and from east to west 268 feet. The height from the ground line to the top of the dome is 361 feet, and to the tip of the flagstaff 405 feet, the highest building in central Illinois. This led to the choice of the State House dome for the installation of the red beacon which glows through the night as a guidance for pilots. In 1949 the beacon was equipped with an electronic "eye" which turns the light on when visibility reaches a certain low—day or night. It used to operate on a clock device which turned the lights on in the evening and off in the morning, making no provision for foggy or overcast days.

Capitol Group of Buildings

Since the turn of the century, additional buildings have been erected on or near the capitol grounds as follows:

CENTENNIAL BUILDING—Cornerstone laid in 1918, completed in 1923. It was constructed to commemorate the 100th birthday of Illinois as a state of the Union. Costs were approximately $3,000,000. In this building are located the State Library, State Historical Library, the Museum, Memorial Hall (where flags of Illinois regiments are encased), and some state offices.

ARCHIVES BUILDING—Completed in 1938 at a cost of more than $800,000. It was designed and constructed to house the valuable historic and semi-current record of the State. Its architecture is unique and although it is seven stories, it contains no windows above the third floor. The building is air-conditioned and is as nearly fireproof as modern science can make it. At the time of construction, only two buildings of similar design were in the United States.

ARMORY BUILDING—Situated north of the State House across Monroe Street stands the Armory building. Here are housed the military branches of the State. Some offices under the Governor's administration are also located here.

SUPREME COURT BUILDING—Just east of the Capitol. A magnificent edifice of classic design. It was dedicated in 1908 and cost $500,000. In the building are the chambers of the State's Supreme Court, Office of the Attorney General and offices of the Appellate Court.

A network of tunnels connects all buildings.

ILLINOIS NEW OFFICE BUILDING—In a ceremony attended by high ranking state officials, Governor William G. Stratton, on February 15, 1954 broke ground for a new state office building.

To alleviate crowded working conditions and centralize state offices, the 68th General Assembly appropriated a total of $12,500,000 or so much thereof as may be needed, for construction and equipping of an office building for state purposes.

The new building and its adjacent parking area will be situated on a site two blocks long and one block wide. The building's dimensions will be 381 feet by 252 feet. The center of the H-shaped building will be eight stories high and the north and south wings will be seven stories. Basement space will include a cafeteria, mechanical equipment, storage space and a truck service dock.

A limestone exterior, with granite base and aluminum windows and trim, is planned. Completely air-conditioned, the building will have 445,020 square feet of gross floor space with 82 per cent of the space usable; only 18 per cent of the floor space will be taken up by service facilities such as storage, corridors and elevators. The imposing new structure will enable the state to consolidate its agencies, some of which now are scattered in 19 various locations in downtown Springfield because of crowded conditions in present state buildings.

The General Assembly approved the measure March 25, 1953. This building also will be connected to the Capitol by an underground tunnel.

Construction of Illinois' new office building officially began February 15, 1954. Among those pictured with Governor Stratton (at microphone) are: Mayor John MacWherter of Springfield; Charles F. Carpentier, Secretary of State; Earl Searcy, Clerk of the Supreme Court; State Senator Roland V. Libonati; Vernon L. Nickell, State Superintendent of Public Instruction; Latham Castle, Attorney General; Orville Hodge, State Auditor; State Senator Merritt Little and Edwin A. Rosenstone, Director of Public Works and Buildings.
